February 27, 2009

Things have definitely been getting hot at the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force's 2009 Winter Party Festival. More than 10,000 gay and lesbian partiers have swarmed upon the sandy beaches of Fort Lauderdale and Miami to participate in one of the hottest parties of the year.

The event kicked off on February 25th, and will climax on the sands of South Beach at the 16th Annual Winter Party Beach Party bash. It's hot fun, but it's also for a good cause -- all proceeds from the Festival will benefit the LGBT community on the national, state and local levels. Visit the Winter Party site for more details of the event, and check out the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force site for more info on their organization. We'll continue to post party pics throughout the weekend, so check back...
